Here is an idea that I did with kindergarten and they loved it! Sit the group in a circle on the floor. Roll a large ball of yarn to one student and state a good quality about that student, then that student rolls the yarn to another; continuing until everybody has a chance. (The yarn will be mixed up and tangled in between all the students.) This teaches the students to recognize good qualities in people that are their friends. Talk about qualities you want in friends. Plus, they love to untangle the yarn at the end!! Hope this is of some help to you
