

Friendship idea

Compiled by: M.T.

This would work (it was done as a self esteem lesson in my S.S. methods class). Each student gets a card stock paper taped to their back. They then walk around the room and each person in the class has to say one positive thing about that person (or in this case why they are a good friend). They write it on the person's back. When they are done they have a whole list of things that make them great friends :o)
