

Friendship themed bulletin board

Compiled by: Sydney Gal

You could get your students to cut out their hands on coloured paper and then you could link the hands somehow and place them around a globe or a heart with the title the hands of friendship. Another alternative is to have a "friendship garden" and have photos of each class member as flowers blooming in your garden. And last but not least, you could also have each one of your students write a letter to someone in the class and place these on the bulletin board with large pencils created from coloured construction paper placed near the written letters. On the pencils you could have the students' names / photos. I use this a lot as it incorporates both teacher and student effort!!!
